The Chair's Welcome

Professor John Harrington, Chair of SLSA

W elcome to the SLSA Annual Conference.

On behalf of the Board of Trustees of the SLSA, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to our Annual Conference at Ulster University in Derry-Londonderry. With over 929 papers across 28 streams and themes, this promises to be an exciting and engaging meeting. The SLSA is delighted to be organizing its second conference in hybrid format since the pandemic. This gives our community a chance to meet in person again, renewing and extending contacts, facilitating productive encounters with the best new work in the field. Full on-line access for presenters and participants ensures an inclusive conference with the widest participation. As well as papers across the breadth of socio-legal topics, Ulster 2023 will host a poster competition, dedicated postgraduate activities, roundtables and plenaries.

We are all excited to be visiting the historic and beautiful city of Derry-Londonderry, an ideal location to hold our plenary on '25 Years of Devolution in the UK' with distinguished scholars in law and politics, including Prof Brice Dickson, Prof Nicola McEwen, and Prof Michael Keating. The conference will also include a plenary roundtable on Socio-Legal and Interdisciplinary Research with Prof Joanne Conaghan and Prof Nick Ellison (respectively chairs of the Law and Social Policy panels in REF 2021), along with Prof Ann-Marie Gray of the Social Policy Association. The roundtable is inspired by findings in our comprehensive EDI survey which highlighted the need to strengthen support for cross-disciplinary working, drawing on the strengths of our members with non-law backgrounds, and reaching out to learned societies in areas beyond law. A further plenary will bring leading funders of socio-legal research, including AHRC, British Academy, the Nuffield Foundation, and Legal Education Foundation together with SLSA members to discuss their developing strategic priorities.

It will be a great pleasure to make the SLSA award for lifetime contribution to the community to Prof Richard Collier of Newcastle University, not only a great scholar, but a true colleague who has mentored, supported and encouraged so many of us through the years. We are also looking forward to awarding the annual Hart Socio-Legal Book Prize, the ECR Book Prize, the Socio-Legal Theory and History Book Prize and the Socio-Legal Article Prize and book prizes. All the shortlisted authors have produced work of great quality, showing that our field is in fine health.

Ulster 2023 will also see the first award of our annual Impact Prize, part of a wider SLSA initiative to support and recognize the broad social contribution made by our members. As ever the conference begins with the dedicated Postgraduate Meeting, led by our PGR representatives, Maddy Millar and Lara MacLachlan. This year we are delighted to welcome to the meeting and conference, colleagues from the Dutch-Flemish Association for Law and Society (VSR). We are partnering with VSR to support exchange between socio-legal PGRs as part of the SLSA's internationalization strategy. With the whole Board, I would like to extend warmest thanks to the organizing committee at Ulster University, Mark Simpson, Ciara Fitzpatrick, Gráinne McKeever, Claire McCollum and Rhonda Black for their creativity, perseverance and tireless work on the conference. We are very grateful to Esther McGuinness and Rory O'Connell, Head of the School of Law and Director of Research at Ulster respectively, for their vital support too.

Fair faa ye til Lunnonderry! Fáilte ó chroí go Doire! A warm welcome to SLSA 2023!

John Harrington
Chair, SLSA.

Welcome from the Head of School and Research Director at the School of Law at Ulster University

Welcome to Ulster University, welcome to Derry-Londonderry and welcome to SLSA 2023. We are delighted to be hosting one of the most important gatherings for the socio-legal research community worldwide.

This year's SLSA conference will be the biggest ever. We have the highest number of papers scheduled for presentation, the largest total number of delegates and are expecting the second highest number of delegates attending in person in the history of the event. This has challenged us as organisers, but it has been a good challenge to have. The level of interest in the conference is a fantastic endorsement of the current health of socio-legal studies, reflects the academic community's desire to come together to share our work and ideas after the disruption of recent years and, we suspect, confirms the power of Derry Girls!

Our packed schedule includes around 800 papers showcasing the latest and best in socio-legal research across almost 40 streams and current topics. We have two great plenary sessions with interdisciplinary panels sharing their Reflections on 25 years of devolution in the UK and thoughts on Socio-legal and interdisciplinary research: 2021 and beyond. Many of the key funders and publishers of socio-legal research will be in attendance and will undoubtedly be keen to hear what delegates have in the pipeline. A dedicated postgraduate programme, sponsored by the Journal of Law and Society, kicks off the conference. And to make sure everyone gets a true 'taste of Ulster', we will be showcasing locally produced food, drink and music at two evening social events.

As glad as we all are to put the lockdown years behind us, important lessons have been learned from that period. The SLSA has taken on board the benefits of hybrid conference arrangements for equality, diversity, and inclusion in socio-legal studies. By making every session at SLSA 2023 available to both in-person and virtual delegates, we hope that this conference will be more accessible than pre-pandemic events.

We wish you a very enjoyable conference.

SLSA Awards 2023

While much of the SLSA conference provides a platform to showcase emerging socio-legal research, our annual get-together is also a chance to recognise outstanding contributions to our field, over the last year or across a career. The awards ceremony will take place as part of the gala dinner on the evening of 5 April.

SLSA Prize for Contributions to the Socio-Legal Community

Winner: Richard Collier

During his 30-year career, Richard has forged new areas of enquiry in socio-legal studies: in gender and masculinities, and wellbeing and the legal profession (for which he was awarded a Leverhulme Fellowship). He has built new bridges with the profession that have helped illuminate and address some of the systemic gender and mental health challenges facing legal practitioners. Richard served for over a decade on the SLSA executive board (including as Secretary and coordinator of prizes), and 23 years on the editorial board of Social and Legal Studies, including four as a co-ordinating editor. In these roles, he has offered thoughtful, insightful and constructive feedback on hundreds of submissions, reflecting his commitment to supporting and developing the next generation of scholars. In his teaching, Richard's passion and care, along with his depth of expertise, support students to develop new ways of thinking, seeing and 'doing' family law. He has given invited lectures, examined PhDs, and co-authored with colleagues across the world. He is a Fellow of the Academy of Social Sciences and the Royal Society of Arts. He is also the most humble, unassuming, thoughtful and caring of colleagues who never talks about his own numerous achievements, despite there being so many (including as a guitar-playing songwriter of – in his words – 'jingly jangly' pop!). Kathryn Holdsworth and Sally Sheldon

The SLSA Derry/Londonderry 2023 - Plenary Sessions

The plenary sessions will take place on Tuesday 4th April at 16:30-17:30 (ahead of the welcome drinks reception at St. Columbus Hall) and Wednesday 5th April at 17:30-19:00 (ahead of the conference dinner) – in the MU011 lecture theatre from 16.30 to 19:00. The discussions will be introduced and chaired by Professor Gráinne McKeever, Professor of Law and Social Justice at Ulster University.

Plenary 1: Socio-legal and Interdisciplinary Research – 2021 and Beyond

Tuesday 4th April, 16.30-17.30, MU011

Interdisciplinary research is central to socio-legal studies. This panel reflects on the opportunities and challenges for scholars at all levels in developing this aspect of their work. Drawing on lessons from REF 2021, our panel will be joined by the heads of the Law and Social Policy panels, as well as the chairs of SLSA and the Social Policy Association. The panel will see the launch of SLSA's initiative to partner with learned societies in other disciplines to support the interdisciplinary capacity and ambitions of our members.

Professor Joanne Conaghan is a Professor of Law at the University of Bristol and a leading scholar in the field of gender and law. She has served as a Law Subpanel member in three REF exercises, including Deputy Chair of the REF2014 Law Subpanel and Chair of the REF2021 Law Subpanel.

Professor Nick Ellison is Professor of Social Policy at the University of York. He chaired sub-panel SP20 - Social Work and Social Policy - for REF 2021.

Professor Ann Marie Gray is Professor of Social Policy at Ulster University and co-director of ARK, an Ulster University/Queen's University research centre. Ann Marie is currently chair of the UK Social Policy Association.

Professor John Harrington is Professor of Global Health Law at Cardiff University, Director of the ESRC Wales Doctoral Training Partnership, and Chair of the Socio-Legal Studies Association. His current research focuses on the role of the nation-state in global health, and on health law in a devolved UK.

Plenary 2: Reflections on 25 Years of Devolution

5 April, 17.30-19.00, MU011

The SLSA conference could not have a more appropriate host city than Derry-Londonderry in the year that marks the 25th anniversary of the Good Friday Agreement and the passage of the legislation establishing devolved Assemblies and Parliaments in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. Our panel, representing different disciplines, parts of the UK and areas of research expertise, will share their thoughts on the significance of and future for legislative devolution, kicking off what we are sure will be a stimulating conversation.

Professor Michael Keating is Emeritus Professor of Politics at the University of Aberdeen and Honorary Professor at the University of Edinburgh. Michael was founding Director of the Centre on Constitutional Change in Edinburgh (2013-21) and is currently General Secretary of the Royal Society of Edinburgh. Among his publications are Plurinational Democracy (Oxford University Press, 2001); The Independence of Scotland (Oxford University Press, 2009); Rescaling the European State (Oxford University Press, 2013); (edited) Debating Scotland. Issues of Independence and Union in the 2014 Referendum (Oxford University Press, 2017), State and Nation in the United Kingdom: The Fractured Union (Oxford University Press, 2021).

Dr. Anwen Elias is a Reader in Politics at the Department of International Politics, Aberystwyth University. Her research interests include comparative territorial and constitutional politics, secession and deliberative democracy. She is Co-Director of the Centre for Welsh Politics and Society and the Wales Institute of Social and Economic Data and Research, and is a member of the Independent Commission on the Constitutional Future of Wales.

Professor Brice Dickson is Emeritus Professor of International and Comparative Law at Queen's University Belfast. He served as the first Chief Commissioner of the Northern Ireland Human Rights Commission from 1999 to 2005 and was an independent member of the Northern Ireland Policing Board from 2012 to 2020. He is the author of numerous books, including the textbook on the legal system of Northern Ireland (Law in Northern Ireland, 4th ed, 2022), and monographs on The European Convention on Human Rights and the Conflict in Northern Ireland (Oxford UP, 2013), The Irish Supreme Court: Historical and Comparative Perspectives (Oxford UP, 2019) and International Human Rights Monitoring Mechanisms: A Study of their Impact in the UK (Edward Elgar Ltd, 2022).

Professor Nicola McEwen is Professor of Territorial Politics at the University of Edinburgh and co-director of the Centre on Constitutional Change. She leads the CCC's research on devolution and inter-institutional relations as on the ESRC-funded Between Two Unions: The Constitutional Future of the Islands after Brexit, having previously acted as Principal Investigator on the ESCR Brexit Priority Grants project A Family of Nations? Brexit, Devolution and the Union. Nicola is a familiar contributor of expert political analysis in the broadcast and print media, to governments and to Parliamentary committees.

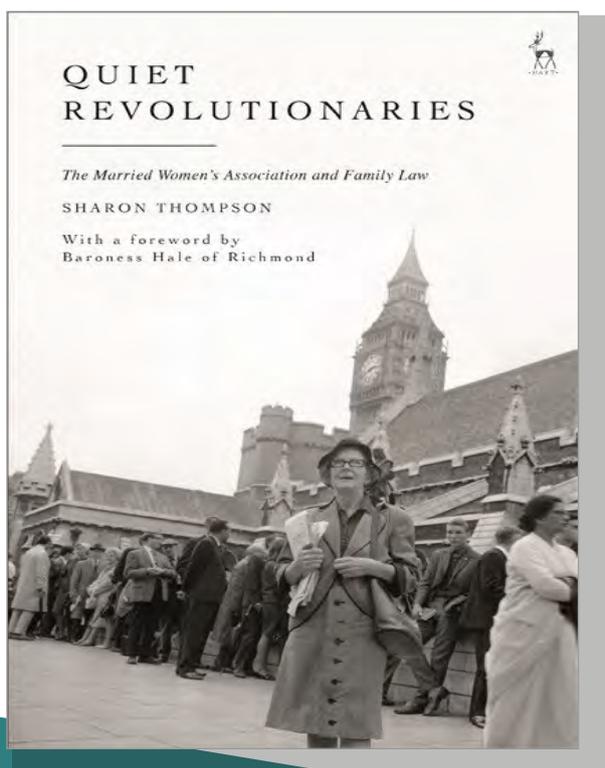

The SLSA Derry/Londonderry 2023 - Meet The Funders

'Lunch and Learn' with Research Funders
Wednesday 5th April, 12.30-13.30, MU125

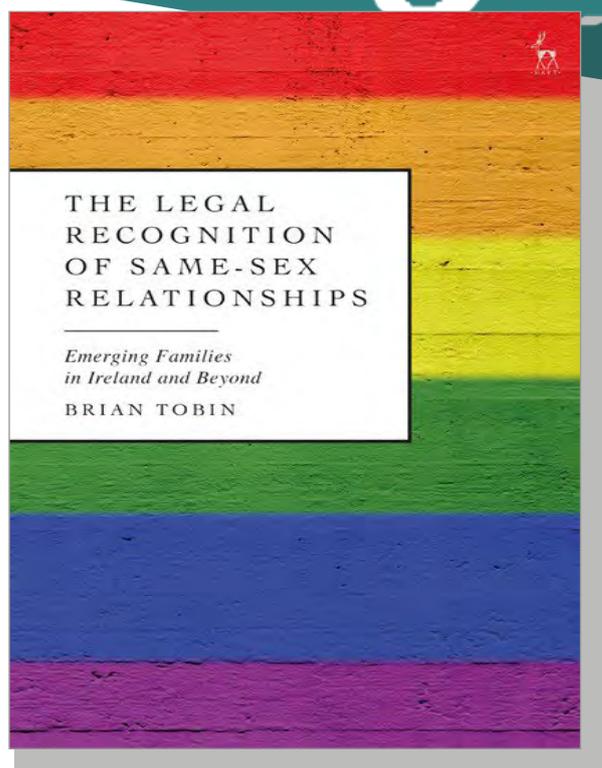

We are delighted that AHRC, British Academy, Nuffield Foundation, and Legal Education Foundation will be presenting to the Postgraduate conference. Grab a lunch bag and join Professor Rory O'Connell (Director of Research, Ulster University School of Law/TJI) who will host a discussion with Dr Natalie Byrom (Director of Research and Learning, LEF), Dr Ken Emond (Head of Research Awards, British Academy), Dr Jaideep Gupte (Director of Research, Strategy, and Innovation, AHRC), Ash Patel (Programme Head, Justice) and Rob Street (Director of Justice, Nuffield).

This roundtable will provide insights into their current funding strategies, as well as current opportunities for socio-legal researchers. They are also keen to hear from the SLSA community in developing future initiatives.

Dear SLSA Attendee,

The Editorial Board members of the Journal of Law and Society hope you have a most enjoyable and productive conference in Derry. There is a long-standing relationship between the JLS and the SLSA which includes the annual conference. Every year the JLS supports the event financially. This year our financial contribution of £1,000 is used to support postgraduates attending the conference. We hope your conference will be memorable for the very best of reasons.

The JLS identifies this conference as a most fruitful source of papers for publication. Should you have a paper that you wish to be considered by the JLS do send it to me. We are currently filling the Autumn and Winter Issues of 2023. Basically, we are anxious to encourage new authors, new ideas and challenging papers. We anticipate that the conference will again provide a selection of publishing opportunities for us. JLS Board members Dan Wincott, John Harrington, Rachel Cahill O'Callaghan, Shane Burke, Joanne Hunt and I will be present so please discuss your ideas, plans and papers with one or more of us.

The contents of the Spring 2023 Issue include:

1. Roger Cotterrell - A Socio-legal Quest: From Jurisprudence to Sociology of Law and Back Again
2. Ole Hammerslev and Annette Olsen - The dynamic and iterative pre-dispute phases: the transformation from a justiciable problem into a legal dispute
3. Qian Liu - Law's Unreasonableness: Intergenerational Relationships and Legal Consciousness in China
4. Sine Vorland Holen - A Duty to Protect? Legal Consciousness among Military Officers in Armed Conflict
5. Steven Vaughan - The Possible Forms of Professionalism: Credibility and the Performance of Sexuality Among LGBT+ Barristers in England & Wales
6. Gunther Teubner - Human-Algorithm Hybrids as (Quasi)Organisations? On the accountability of digital collective actors
7. Tine Destrooper - Disruptive Accountability? Temporal Regimes and Social Change in Decolonization Struggles in Belgium

Papers accepted for the Summer 2023 Issue include:

1. Kees Huizinga - Indications of Goal Displacement Induced by New Public Management: A Case Study of Regulatory Enforcement
2. Javier Wilenmann - "No buddy, I will not speak to the press, I am working!": Criminal Justice and the Interprofessional Dynamics of Communication Production in the Chilean Public Prosecutorial Office
3. Ruth Dukes and Wolfgang Streeck - Labour Law after Neoliberalism
4. Heba Khalil - Lawyers as Infrastructures: Mediations, Blockages and New Possibilities in Grassroots Movements
5. Nina Törnqvist and Åsa Wettergren - Epistemic Emotions in Prosecutorial Decision-making

The second part of the Socio-Legal Methodologies special supplement was published in September 2022. They bring together established and emerging scholars to challenge understandings of methodology in socio-legal research.

The JLS also offer five published papers free to view to conference attendees during April:

1. A socio-legal quest: from jurisprudence to sociology of law and back again – Roger Cotterrell (Vol 50, Issue 1)
2. Vehicles for Justice: buses and advancement – Antonia Layard (Vol 49, Issue 2)
3. The politics of the production of knowledge on trauma: the Grenfell Tower Inquiry – Natalie Ohana (Vol 48, Issue 4)
4. Accountability in the Regulatory State – Colin Scott (Vol 27, Issue 1)
5. The price of positionality: assessing the benefits and burdens of self-identification in research methods – Mark Fathi Massoud (Vol 49, Issue S1)

Have an enjoyable and stimulating conference and best wishes for 2023.

Kind regards,

Phil Thomas, Editor

SLSA 2023: Social Programme

Postgraduate Researcher Meet-up

3 April, 19.30 onwards at Sandinos Bar.

Evening Reception and Welcome

4 April, 18.00 at St Columb's Hall

The historic City Centre venue for our evening reception can be seen in the penultimate episode of Derry Girls. It will provide the perfect setting to welcome delegates to the conference and Derry-Londonderry, with locally produced beers and spirits from the Walled City Brewery, plus live music from Ulster University students and graduates. Shuttle buses and a 'walking bus' will depart the Ulster University campus for St Columb's Hall following the conclusion of the plenary session at 17.30.

Gala Dinner & Prize Ceremony

5 April, 19.15 at The Everglades Hotel

The conference dinner will feature the annual SLSA prizegiving ceremony and live music from Ulster University students and graduates. Food will be served after Iftar. Shuttle buses will depart the Ulster University campus for the Everglades following the conclusion of the plenary session at 19.00. Buses back to the City Centre and outlying hotels will depart from 23.00.

City Tours

If you would like to get to know your host city a little better, you can book a walking tour of Derry-Londonderry in advance by emailing tours@visitderry.com. Please mention that you are a SLSA conference delegate. VisitDerry will be available throughout the conference in block MU should you wish to book on the day!

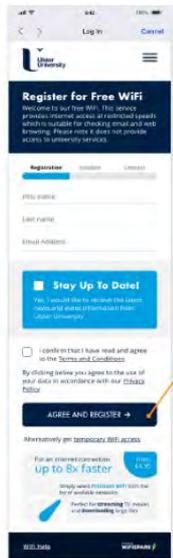

Are you interested in contributing to the Oxford Centre for Socio-Legal Studies blog? Come and see us at our stand. We will be there throughout the conference and we would love to meet you! Take a look at our most recent content here: <https://frontiers.csls.ox.ac.uk>
